*The exact subject of each class depends on what is fresh in the market or in my backyard at the time class is scheduled.

The workshop starts at 10 each day – come early if you’d like some coffee – and the day ends at 4 pm.

If you missed the basic drawing class this winter, you can join any other class, and work on basic drawing instead of painting.

If you have a project in gouache or pencil you can’t seem to complete, please bring it to class, and work on it here!

There are friendly dogs at both workshop locations, allergies beware.

Bring your own lunch both days. Fruit and other snacks, plus water and iced tea will be available.

If you will be coming to Raleigh, there are 4 extra bedrooms at my home/studio. You are invited to stay, at $45./night, including breakfast. Check with me early to see if there is room!

As you register, I’ll send a list of supplies. If you are new to painting in gouache, and do not want to invest in the materials until you “test” it, you can use my paints for $15/ day.

If you are coming with a group of friends, the group can pool resources and buy one set of supplies (plus your own brushes).

These workshops are fun, creative and non judgmental. I’m so convinced that virtually anyone CAN paint – and my step by step method of teaching helps to make this come true. Come play!
